Tips for enjoying your walk

If you have a dog, take care where there are livestock or, if possible take an alternative route. Cows with calves can be a problem. Parts of the walk can become muddy especially after heavy rain so strong waterproof footwear is recommended. Take care where conditions are rough and let someone know where you are going. Please be aware that much of the walk is unsuitable for wheelchairs and difficult for pushchairs. There are some stiles toward the end of the walk but these can be avoided by walking down North End Road.

Explore a rolling patchwork of arable fields and small woods north of the quiet village of Stagsden in north Bedfordshire

Stagsden

The settlement of Stagsden (formerly Stachedene) dates back to the Iron Age. Roman remains have also been found. Following the Norman invasion, the parish was divided into six manors which were gifted to supporters of William. After a period of ownership by the Earls of Peterborough and then the Trevors, much of the parish was bought by the Crown in 1873. Slate roofed brick-built 'Crown cottages' built during this period are dotted around the parish. The Crown estate of 3360 acres and many farms and cottages was sold at auction in 1921. The old school house, now the renovated Village Hall, remains in Crown Estates ownership.

Local geology and soils

Although older buildings in the village are of locally quarried limestone, surrounding land is underlain by the glacial chalky boulder clay visible in ditch cuttings. The soils are alkaline, clayey and require artificial drainage. They support large crop yields particularly of wheat. Some low land is underlain by acid clay soils and more suited to pasture.

A farmed landscape

The crops grown in and around Stagsden are predominantly winter wheat and oilseed rape which has bright yellow flowers in Spring. You may come across a field of barley, field peas or beans grown for animal feed. The heavy clay soil does not suit potatoes or field vegetables.

There are two beef suckler herds in the village, one of which you may see and possibly walk through during the summer/autumn months. However there are now almost as many horses in Stagsden as there are cattle!

Flora and fauna

Stagsden's farmland and base-rich woods host a variety of flora and fauna. Primroses, Bluebells and Cowslips abound in Spring. Grass verges provide habitat for a range of common wild flowers and rarities such as the Bee Orchid

Buzzards are a familiar sight in the skies above; Red Kites rarer. Other birds include Skylark, Woodpeckers, finches, Red Legged and some Grey Partridge. The call of Blackcap, Chiffchaff and Whitethroat can be heard along with numerous Swallows and the odd Yellow Wagtail. In Winter Redwings and Fieldfares join resident Song and Mistle Thrushes feeding on grassland and tall, berry-bearing hedges. Our summer butterflies include Meadow Brown, Gatekeeper and both Common and Holy Blue. Grass Snakes still survive in the area. Hares and Muntjac Deer can also be seen.

Planning your walk

The Royal George pub in the centre of Stagsden is the suggested starting point and the walk is described in an anticlockwise direction. There are several other potential starting points and a number of paths and bridleways, which are marked on the map, offer alternative and shorter routes if you get tired or the weather changes

Refreshments, parking and toilets

There is parking on the High Street and alongside the churchyard. The Royal George pub has kindly agreed to allow parking for walkers who take refreshments there (no muddy boots, please). Inform the landlord if you intend to leave your car in the car park. You may also be able to get coffee at Manor Farm shop opposite the church.
