Cycle route overview

This itinerary contains three routes that each can be completed as a relaxed day cycle. The routes are described below with reference to the Painters' Trail map:

- ROUTE 1. Quiet country lanes - Circular route from Bures – Approximately 18 miles
This route begins at Bures rail station and follows the Painters' Trail through direction points 62 to 72. The short cut (marked in green) is then taken across the Stour Valley to Thorington Street and then sections 21 to 31 are completed, taking in Stoke by Nayland, Polstead and Nayland before returning to Bures.
- ROUTE 2. Journey down the Stour Valley to the river estuary – Approximately 18 miles
This is a linear route from Bures to the mouth of the river close to Manningtree. It begins at Bures railway station and follows the Painters' Trail through direction points 62 to 86, taking in Little Horkesley, Boxted, Langham, Stratford St Mary, Dedham, Lawford and Manningtree. Cyclists can then depart from Manningtree railway station, or stay longer and explore more of the Painters' Trail.
- ROUTE 3. A circular route through Constable Country – Approximately 16 miles
This circular route begins at Manningtree railway station. Sections 1 to 12, passing through East Bergholt and Holton St Mary and then a short cut to points 78 to 86 are followed back to Manningtree via Stratford St Mary, Dedham and Lawford.

Highlights of the routes

ROUTE 1. Quiet country lanes - Circular route from Bures

This is a very attractive part of Dedham Vale with quiet lanes perfect for cycling and views over the valley. The route passes through many charming villages and places of interest.

Bures

The route begins and ends at Bures. Formally a major malting centre, many of the buildings in the village date from the 16th and 17th Century. Bures has a number of public houses to visit for food and refreshments. This is where you will cycle across the River Stour for the first time.

As you leave Bures follow the point markers on the map in ascending order.

The route from Bures to Stoke by Nayland

On leaving Bures, there is an option to take a short detour at point 65 to visit Wormingford, an ancient hill top village. The village is connected with the artist John Nash, (1893 – 1977) famous for his local scenes and botanical illustration, he is buried at Wormingford churchyard. There is a pub for refreshments here and at Little Horkesley (point 67).

A short detour from point 70 will take you to Carter's Vineyards. The vineyard is powered by renewable energy and has a nature trail, picnic area and winery. It can be found by looking in the box on the map that contains direction point 70 (marked 'Vineyard'). The entrance is about ¼ mile south west of point 70.

At point 72 take the route marked in green on the Painters' Trail guide map which crosses the River Stour and then heads towards Thorington Street. You will rejoin the Painter's trail west of point 20 and then head towards Stoke by Nayland following the points in ascending order. Some of the best views of the valley can be appreciated in this area where the Box and Brett tributaries cut deep into the countryside before meeting the River Stour.

Stoke-by-Nayland

Stoke-by-Nayland is a pretty village with cottages and medieval timber framed houses. These delightful houses clustered near the church form the archetypal image of an English Village. The Church of St Mary with its huge 120 foot perpendicular tower can be seen from afar. There are 2 pubs and a shop for refreshments in the village.

From Stoke by Nayland, the route follows Scotland Street, crossing the River Box and then heading uphill to Polstead.

Polstead to Nayland

Polstead is a pretty village with a picturesque green as its focal point. The village is home to the first community shop in the country, selling local produce amongst other provisions and there is also a pub overlooking the green. St Mary's Church which has the only medieval stone spire in the county is in an idyllic setting overlooking the Box valley. The village is also famous for its variety of small sweet cherries, the 'Polstead blacks' that were originally introduced by the Romans.

Nayland

From Polstead the route drops down to Nayland, once one of Suffolk's 15th Century weaving centres. This is a well served village where you can stock up on picnic provisions and enjoy a rest down by the river or visit one of the pubs.

The route back to Bures

From Nayland the route follows the river up the valley past Wissington, locally known as Wiston, this is a delightfully quiet part of the route leading back to Bures following points 30, 31 and 63.

ROUTE 2. Journey down the Stour Valley to the river estuary

The first half of this route is the same as ROUTE 1 but instead of crossing the river at point 72, continue to Stratford St Mary via the village of Langham. The route then continues through Dedham down to Manningtree. This section covers map points 72 to 86.

Langham

Langham Church stands high on the hillside and has strong associations with John Constable; it's well worth a stop here to appreciate the views over to Dedham. To visit the Langham Community Shop (next to the village hall), take a detour southwards to the main part of the village.

Stratford St Mary

Stratford St Mary is situated close to the A12, originally an important coaching stop. The ancient milepost in the village indicates that it is 58 miles to London, which would have taken 2 or 3 days by horse. The busy wool town thrived on the passing trade from travellers and there are still three inns to this day that visitors can enjoy.

There is a shop at Hall Farm (point 78) which stocks an extensive range of local produce. A new cafe and restaurant is due to open here in July 2006.

Dedham

Dedham is a thriving village with beautiful listed houses, interesting shops and an excellent selection of places to eat, including a 16th Century tea house. St Mary the Virgin Church on the High Street was built in the 15th century with money provided by a local cloth manufacturer. The tower is particularly imposing for a church of this size and features in a number of Constable's paintings. Look out for the original Constable inside the Church.

Dedham is a great place to stop off as there are plenty of places to enjoy refreshments in the tea rooms, pubs and restaurants. The village sustains a wide variety of individual shops from a butcher to a bookshop and a browse along the High Street is a must. There are bike racks located near to the war memorial.

Dedham High Street

Manningtree

From Dedham the route continues through points 79 to 86 and arrives in Manningtree. Manningtree is reputed to be the smallest market town in the country and is a perfect base for exploring the Stour and Orwell river estuaries as well as Constable Country to the west.

If you are interested in wildlife the RSPB Stour Estuary Nature Reserve is close to Manningtree and is a great place to spot wintering birds on the estuary or to take a stroll through the woods to look out for wild flowers. There is an accompanying itinerary available based in Manningtree which is focussed on the Stour estuary and takes in more great places to see bird life in the area.

ROUTE 3. A circular route through Constable Country

This route begins at Manningtree station and follows the Painter's Trial through East Bergholt to Holton St Mary and then drops down to Stratford St Mary and Dedham before returning to Manningtree. It is circular so can be picked up at any point along the route.

Manningtree to Flatford

From Manningtree the route passes Cattawade and then turns towards East Bergholt. At point 3 on the map there is the entrance to East Bergholt Place which makes an interesting excursion. This woodland garden is set in 15 acres around a valley with a stream and pool and is home to a specialist plant nursery.

THE ITINERARY

At point 4, the route turns left towards the tiny hamlet of Flatford. At point 5, take a detour down the narrow high-banked lane to reach Flatford, the scene of a number of Constable's paintings and made up of a handful of buildings including the National Trust's Flatford Mill, Willy Lott's House, Valley Farm and Bridge Cottage. Many of the scenes that Constable captured remain virtually unchanged to this day and can be spotted on a self-guided tour with the help of one of the National Trust's leaflets (available at Bridge Cottage or the tea room). Guided tours are also available during the summer. Bike racks are located inside the gates to the dry dock, adjacent to the tea rooms.

Bridge Cottage houses a permanent exhibition on Constable, including prints and sketches of some of his most famous paintings. For information on other places to visit and stay nearby, call in to the Flatford Visitor Information Centre.

Rejoin the route at point 5 and head towards East Bergholt – be sure to stop along the lane on your way to take in the stunning views across to Dedham.

East Bergholt to Stratford St Mary

East Bergholt is where John Constable was born and raised and locations in East Bergholt feature strongly in many of his paintings. The Church of St Mary the Virgin in East Bergholt has an unusual Bell Cage that is still rung by hand to this day. The graves of Constable's parents can also be found here.

From East Bergholt the route continues to Holton St Mary and joins the National Cycle Network Route 1 at point 11. At point 12 follow the short cut marked in green through Higham and then across to Stratford St Mary at point 78.

East Bergholt Church & Bell Cage

The route back to Manningtree

From Stratford St Mary the route heads through Dedham and back to Manningtree. These sections 78 to 86 have been described in ROUTE 2.
