Maritime Essex

This delightful trail features maritime Essex, travelling along one of the longest coastlines in England - 350 miles long. Start your journey at the historic port of Harwich and travel south to the pretty resorts of Walton-on-the-Naze and Frinton-on-Sea. Next, visit stunning Mersea Island for a relaxing afternoon and sample some of its fantastic wine and seafood.

Travel onto Maldon and see the famous Thames Sailing Barges at the Hythe Quay, travel south to the Dengie Peninsula and St Peter's-on-the-Wall; one of the oldest churches in England. Your next stop is Burnham-on-Crouch; sometimes referred to as the Cowes of the east coast. Finally round off your tour with a visit to the cockle sheds of Old Leigh just outside Southend-on-Sea.

Maritime Essex

To fully appreciate the sights and attractions of this tour, we recommend that you allow two days - so why not make a weekend of it? Please see the back page for details of accommodation. To avoid disappointment please check with the attractions for opening times and accommodation for availability before setting off.

This itinerary is intended as a guide only. Please refer to OS Landranger maps numbers 168 and 178 or any other recognised road map for specific directions.

5

Maldon

Take a stroll along the Hythe Quay, where many Thames Sailing Barges are moored or take a gentle cruise on one of these vessels and enjoy the beautiful and peaceful views of the East. Alternatively go for a picnic in Promenade Park, an Edwardian park, with magnificent river views, walks and children's play areas.

Mersea Island

Make a small detour to this wild and mysterious island - reached by an Old Saxon causeway - but be sure to check the tides. It is the most easterly inhabited island in the UK and is situated in the estuary area of the River Blackwater and Colne.

Bradwell

The road to Bradwell winds its way past a number of small villages with weather boarded cottages and thatched roofs. Take a stroll to the atmospheric St. Peter's-on-the-Wall Chapel which evokes a feeling of space and peace. If you feel more energetic why not follow the 6 mile circular route around the top of the peninsula, an area of shell banks, mudflats and shingle beaches full of wildlife.

Company Shed

West Mersea Oyster Bar

7

Burnham-on-Crouch

The town has a distinctly nautical atmosphere. Historically it has benefited from its location on the coast, first as a ferry port and later as a fishing port. It is also known for its oyster beds, and most recently as a centre for yachting. Take a walk along the attractive quayside with its many listed buildings or visit the local museum on the seafront with its many maritime exhibits charting the history of the Dengie.

A visit to the Mangapps Railway Museum with working locomotives, carriages and memorabilia is a delight for young and old.

Tel: 01621 784898 www.mangapps.co.uk

For more information on the district please call 01621 786785 or go to www.visitmaldondistrict.co.uk

8

Southend-on-Sea

With more than six miles of clean, safe and award winning beaches, beautiful parks and gardens, exciting events, museums and galleries, theatres and of course the world's longest pleasure pier, the possibilities are endless for a great day out or a short break away. But no coastal trip is complete without a visit to the cobbled streets of Old Leigh. The picturesque backdrop provides the perfect setting for lunch in one of the stylish restaurants or a traditional pub. Don't forget to sample the fresh seafood from the famous cockle sheds.

Harwich

Hometown of Captain Christopher Jones who led the Pilgrim Fathers' voyage to America in 1620. Famous diarist Samuel Pepys was MP for the town in the 1660's, when it was the headquarters of the King's Navy. The old town retains a number of important historic buildings. Follow the Harwich Maritime Heritage Trail and find out about the historic features and the town's connections with the sea.

Walton-on-the-Naze

This town illustrates the typical character of an early Victorian resort and is the ideal location for a traditional day at the seaside. The present pier was built in 1870 and the former lifeboat station at East Terrace now houses an interpretative museum of local and maritime history. Not to be missed is a visit to the Naze tower, a historic 86ft navigational tower housing, over eight floors, an art gallery, museum, tea rooms and a roof viewing platform with spectacular panoramic views.

Tel: 01255 852519 www.nazetower.co.uk

For more information on the area, contact the Walton Tourist Information Centre

Tel: 01255 675542

Open between May and September.

3

Frinton-on-Sea

For a more sedate pace visit Frinton-on-Sea. The town was developed as a select resort by Sir Richard Cooper during the late 19th century. The Church of St Mary contains some interesting panels of William Morris stained glass in the east window, designed by Burne Jones. For peace and tranquillity don't miss this resort!
