New Conference Facilities add to the new look Dean Heritage Centre

Tuesday 4th October: For immediate release

The newly refurbished Dean Heritage Centre has added another string to its bow in the form of a brand new conference venue.

The newly converted room, previously a blacksmith's workshop, is fully equipped and has space for 18 delegates in boardroom style or 25 in theatre style. In addition, it has beautiful views of the millpond and direct access to the veranda.

Situated next door to the onsite café, great food can be ordered with any package.

Among the first to sample the new space were Gloucestershire Archives department and the centre's own trustees AGM including two brand new members.

Julie Reynolds. Museums Development Officer at Gloucestershire archives remarked on her first booking: "We found the room very comfortable and well-appointed for our needs. There was ample free car parking and very accommodating staff. The refreshments provided were generous and the option to take coffee on the veranda overlooking the pond was a lovely bonus. Lots of the delegates and the trainer commented on the lovely setting and atmosphere. Access to the room was great, the room itself was bright and fresh and clean. I'd give it four stars!"

Harri Le Claire, PR & Event Manager for the Centre said: "The room is a lovely addition to the centre and provides a private, light, airy space which is the perfect location for meetings, conferences, training sessions or any social event."
