

CULTURAL PURSUITS IN THE GARDEN OF ENGLAND

In 2011, Kent could be called 'Cultural County' of the year. Three events in particular head a very long list of festivals, concerts, exhibitions and shows that will make your visit to the Garden of England very special. In Margate, the long-awaited Turner Contemporary gallery opens; in Canterbury the New Marlowe Theatre building will be unveiled, and the Triennial Arts Festival returns to Folkestone.

The county has much to offer anyone wishing to experience a cultural short break. Kent's seaside towns are rapidly evolving, shaking off their 'kiss-me-quick' reputations, and acquiring a chic, artistic image. Away from the coast, Canterbury and Maidstone's arts venues are the subject of major regeneration projects.

Come for a weekend or short break, tour cultural treasures and grand designs. Escape and find your own space!

DAY ONE

Margate

3.6 miles from Manston Airport

Head to the coastal town of Margate to begin your cultural tour and witness the birthplace of the British seaside.

Morning – Turner Contemporary

Visitors to the town will be able to enjoy world-class art in the new Turner Contemporary gallery overlooking the town's famous golden sands. Designed by Stirling Prize winning architect David Chipperfield, Turner Contemporary is a stunning addition to the town. Margate was often visited by the artist JMW Turner and the gallery will always have some of his work on display for visitors to enjoy. There will be a rolling programme of exhibitions featuring work by leading international contemporary artists alongside historic works from 1750 onwards.

Or – Shell Grotto

One of Margate's more curious 'architresures' is the Shell Grotto, uncovered in 1835. Ancient temple or Regency folly? Descend the chalk stairway and see for yourself the 2,000 sq ft of mosaic created from 4.6 million shells, depicting gods and trees of life.

Lunch – Margate Old Town

Walk over to The Piazza between Margate Old Town and the gallery. During the summer, it is filled with tables spilling out from restaurants, where you can enjoy the view, watching the sea, fishing boats, fireworks, dancing, carnivals and bands. Live music is staged throughout the season, and if you like jazz, don't miss the Margate Jazz Festival in July. Behind the Piazza in the Old Town you can discover the private galleries, teashops, gift-shops, cafés, restaurants and bars with friendly proprietors providing an alternative shopping experience. Pick up a copy of the Old Town map from the Visitor Information Centre for your own guided tour.

Or – Quex Barn

Making the ideal lunch stop on any tour, Quex Barn, is a farmers' market and restaurant that is passionate about Kent produce! Enjoy the very best of fresh produce from the butchery, fish monger and café, and tuck into fruit and vegetables, fresh bread and a huge variety of Kent produce including jams and honeys – not forgetting the newly launched Kent Crisps.

Afternoon – The Hornby Visitor Centre

For an art of a different kind, The Hornby Visitor Centre, based at the global headquarters of Hornby in Margate, features treasures from the Company's archives dating back as far as the 1920s. The Visitor Centre features fascinating displays about some of the nation's best loved toys, with sections dedicated to the iconic brands of Hornby, Scalextric, Airfix and Corgi. Visitors are able to see some stunning model rail layouts and also try their skills on a Scalextric circuit.

Or – Pugins Town Trail

The 19th century architect Augustus Pugin, leader of the Gothic Revival, knew and loved nearby Ramsgate from visits in his youth, declaring in 1844: 'I would give anything to get to Ramsgate.' He designed a house for himself, The Grange, which has recently been restored by the Landmark Trust and is now open for holiday lets. And while you're there, follow the unique Pugins Town Trail from east to west cliffs, linking the splendid buildings designed or associated with the talented Pugin family.

DAY TWO

Folkestone

26.4 miles from Manston Airport

31.3 miles from Margate

We continue our coastal route via Dover's Georgian seafront to Folkestone, whose Edwardian seaside vibe is invigorated by the burgeoning Creative Quarter around the cobbled Old High Street.

Morning – Folkestone Triennial

The Folkestone Triennial, 25 June – 25 September, is an ambitious public art project planned as part of the regeneration of the town, and is billed as the must-see contemporary art event of the summer. It is one of the most ambitious public art projects ever to be presented in the UK which sees contemporary artworks sited in public spaces throughout the coastal town.

Nineteen international artists have been commissioned to create new works for the 2011 Triennial, including Cornelia Parker, who will be casting a life-size bronze statue of a female Folkestone resident in the pose of Copenhagen's famous Little Mermaid; Cristina Iglesias, who will create an architectural structure on the ramparts of one of Folkestone's historic Martello Towers, which will give the illusion of an entrance into another world; Hew Locke, who will be suspending 100 model ships collected from around the world in the nave of St Mary and St Eanswythe's church, the oldest building in Folkestone; and Zineb Sedira, who will make a film about an extraordinary lighthouse in Algeria. The film will be housed in the former deckchair storage hall in Folkestone's cliff face, which has not been accessible for years.

Or – The Quarterhouse

At the heart of Folkestone's Creative Quarter is The Quarterhouse, Folkestone's performing arts centre which attracts a wide range of music, theatre, comedy and family performances including Michael McIntyre, Sean Lock and the team at BBC Kent Introducing. It is also the home venue for Folkestone Book Festival, Stand Up! Comedy Festival and The Hook Music Festival. The whole Quarter fizzes all year with cultural activities, its galleries, studios, cafés and bars jostling with each other, down to the picturesque harbour.

Lunch - Rocksalt

New developments in the harbour include Mark Sargeants "Rocksalt" restaurant. Rocksalt is due to open in early June 2011 and will be situated overlooking the harbour on the former site of Jetty's pub. The menu at Rocksalt is expected to feature meat and fish smoked and cured onsite, as well as plenty of fresh local seafood which is landed daily a short distance from the restaurant.

Or – The Smokehouse

Alongside Rocksalt there will also be a separate fish and chip shop located in an old smokehouse nearby called The Smokehouse. The fish and chip shop will also have four rooms available to provide accommodation should you be too full of fresh fish to wander any further.

Afternoon- Metropole Galleries

Also in Folkestone are the Metropole Galleries (www.metropole.org.uk), housed in a striking Edwardian building set on the seafront. Recent exhibitions have featured Tacita Dean, Phyllida Barlow and Mark Titchner.

Or - Dungeness

Get away from it all at the end of the day scrunching along the shingle bank of Dungeness, which has been slowly moulded by the sea. It's the largest shingle beach in Europe and a third of all known plant species grow among the pebbles (have a look!). Dungeness is home to Derek Jarman's famous garden at Prospect Cottage, which combines local plants, flints, stones, driftwood and fishing nets on a huge bank of shingle. It also boasts several small art galleries, including the Dungeness Gallery, situated between two lighthouses on the shingle beach.

DAY THREE

Canterbury

18.8 miles from Folkestone

14.5 miles from Manston Airport

Morning/Afternoon – Canterbury Cathedral

Move inland to Canterbury and visit the thrilling statement in stone that is Canterbury Cathedral. Look up to the sprays of rib vaulting in the 14th century Perpendicular Gothic nave and feel your imagination soar with such daring medieval design.

Canterbury Cathedral has provided sculptor Antony Gormley with the inspiration for his latest striking artwork, entitled "Transport". The artist used antique iron nails taken from the cathedral's repaired roof to create a two metre long membrane outlining the space of a floating body. The piece, which is on display until the end of 2011, has been suspended above the site of Thomas Becket's first resting place in the Eastern Crypt of the Cathedral.

Or – Marlowe Theatre

Named after the playwright Christopher Marlowe, who was born and attended school in the city, the ambitious new Marlowe Theatre will reopen its doors in October 2011. The building, designed by architect Keith Williams, is fronted by a dramatic, glazed foyer that unites all the areas of the theatre, its two stages and the riverside café, with the magnificent medieval streets of Canterbury. It's a great place to take in a show, or meet friends and soak in the artistic vibe. The Marlowe will be playing an important part in the Canterbury Festival in October this year, an exciting time to visit the city. The festival has something for everyone, from classical, jazz and rock music, to theatre, stand-up comedy, art exhibitions, walks, workshops and other fringe events. The Gulbenkian Theatre, a lively venue overlooking the city, situated on the University of Kent Campus, has a varied programme all year, almost an everlasting festival in its own right.

Afternoon – Shopping in Canterbury

Once you've toured the cultural venues let curiosity be your compass as you browse the cobbled streets of one of the oldest cities with a continuous history.

Other cultural locations to be explored:

No. 1 Smithery is a brand new museum experience and all-round treasure house for the whole family. Since July 2010, "National Treasures and Magnificent Art" have been on show for the first time under one roof at The Historic Dockyard Chatham. No.1 Smithery is a joint project between Chatham Historic Dockyard Trust, the National Maritime Museum and the Imperial War Museum that showcases unique and previously unseen maritime artefacts, national and international touring art.

A vibrant contemporary arts scene has emerged in Medway in recent years is stimulating growing interest. Rochester Arts and Crafts Trail is rapidly gaining recognition for its diverse cultural offering. The trail is easy to discover and enjoy Rochester's hidden gems and highlights. Inspired by famous faces who grew up here, Zandra Rhodes, Tracey Emin and Jeff Banks, its central location between London and the Channel Ports and its continuing maritime traditions have created a hub of creativity ready to be explored. Begin the trail at Rochester Guildhall Museum and see where it will take you!

For complete contrast, hire a bike (or bring your own) and cycle the 7.5-mile Crab and Winkle Way to Whitstable, admiring fascinating modern sculptures and medieval earthworks as you go. Suddenly, you're in a delightful harbour town of weatherboarded cottages, smugglers' dwellings and winding lanes. Seafood and quirky-chic vistas: the perfect match for lunch or a leisurely evening meal.

Deal beckons with further proof of a cultural heritage that's cherished. The Middle Street Conservation Area is a maze of quiet, unspoilt streets, and everywhere you'll spot contrasts of building periods and materials. Bring your paints or camera: the variety of viewpoints gives superb light and shadow effects. Latest developments include a striking new café at the end of the pier, the subject of a competition organised by the Royal Institute of British Architects. Kent's land- and seascapes constantly inspire artists – see what they do for you.

Away from East Kent both the Maidstone & Bentsley Art Gallery and the Tunbridge Wells Museum & Art Gallery own rich and diverse collections and hold contemporary art shows. Marle Place Gardens also hosts varied exhibitions of painting, ceramics, sculpture and print.
