February 2010

Coventry Farmers' Market

Coventry city centre is set to host the first monthly Farmers' Market of 2010 this Thursday the 11th of February.

The popular market is situated on Market Way and will be trading between the hours of 9am – 5pm.

The market offers a variety of fresh, locally sourced seasonal produce and has always very popular with the public.

A vast range of products are on offer from the farmers, including; honey, mustard, marmalade, jams, beeswax, a variety of flavoured breads, croissants, pickles, fresh meat, eggs, cooked sausages and Melton Mowbray pies which are perfect for the winter weather.

All goods are farmed and sourced from within a 50 mile radius so you can be sure everything you buy is local. By buying local consumers can help support the local economy as well as reducing their carbon footprint and benefiting from fresh seasonal produce.

Jo Grimshaw Communications Executive for CV One, said:

“The Farmers market is a brilliant and effective way of getting locally produced, fresh, high quality food direct from producer to consumer. If one of your resolutions for 2010 was to eat more healthily make sure you visit the stalls in Market Way.”
