Walk 1: 6km (10km)

1. From Haworth Station forecourt, cross the main road via the crossing point and turn right to walk along Station Road, passing the engine shed, fire station and war memorial on the right before bearing left uphill to Broad Road. After a short distance look out for the footpath sign on the right. Follow the well-trodden footpath across the fields, through farmlands and passing Oxenhope water treatment works before turning left onto the footbridge. Continue the walk under the railway line to the site of the former railway station, Haworth Railway Station, now the Bronte Parsonage Museum (open to the public in the summer).

2. At the end of the footpath go through the gap on the minor road (Ebor Lane), turn left to follow the road crossing the Ebor Dam before bearing right uphill to join the main Haworth Road. Here turn right and walk down the shops to Haworth Station from where you started your walk.

Walk 2: 6km (10km)

1. From Haworth Station forecourt, walk up the ramp at the side of the railway station buildings and over the bridge. Immediately over the bridge turn right and walk to the top of the narrow road, bearing left at the first (on the right) of the cottages, then immediately right down the side of the cottages to a gateway. From here follow the same walking instructions as the full walk from (point 7) marked on both the map and instructions. Your walk will finish back at Haworth Station.
Tourist Information Centre
Situated at the top of Main Street, Haworth the centre was used in the film as the butchers shop.

Shops and Houses on Haworth Main Street, Church Street and Lodge Street
Seen when the children were collecting birthday gifts for Perks.

Bents House (The Three Chimneys)
The Yorkshire home of the Railway Children. Much of the field in front of the house seen in the film covered in buttercups has been replaced by a much more formal garden. To the rear of the house can be seen the stone stile which Perk's has difficulty negotiating whilst delivering a large basket to the Three Chimneys.

Breb'ton Parsonage Museum (The Doctors house)
Already well known throughout the literary world being the home of the Brontë family. In the film, this house became the home of Doctor Forrest.

Haworth Churchyard
Seen when Peter runs to fetch Doctor Forrest because his mother is unwell and also when Roberta fetches Dr. Forrest to attend to the 'shabby Russian'.

Railway Children Engine (below) Pannier Tank Engine, former 0.6.0 Great Western, painted in the ficticious livery and logo of the Great Northern & Southern Railway, specially created for the film. The engine is still in use on the Keighley and Worth Valley Railway.

Mytholmes Tunnel and Embankment
Seen in the film during the paper chase and is where the landslide was filmed. Nearby on the railway line the railway children used their red flannel petticoats as flags to warn the driver of the 11.29 train of the danger.

The Fleece Public House
Used by the film production company as their base and offices. Photographs of the filming can be seen in the pubs dining room.

The Level Crossing
Seen throughout the film and in particular when Mr Perks opens the gate for The Scotts Flyer. For filming, the gates were changed from the normal single gate to double gates.

Railway Cottage (Mr Perks Home)
Located across the level crossing from Oakworth station. The first house on the left named 'Railway Cottage' was the home of Mr Perk's. The house next door is a recent addition and is built on land where the wooden outside privy (lavatory) was situated.

Mytholmes Tunnel (the opposite end)
Being only 82 metres (89 yards) long, the film makers had to build a scaffold over this end of the tunnel and cover it with a tarpaulin to make the tunnel appear longer and much darker.

Vale Fold Cottages
Row of cottages seen during the paper chase. The mill dam seen in front of these cottages has been drained and planted with trees.

Vale Fold Cottages
Used by the film production company as their base and offices. Photographs of the filming can be seen in the pubs dining room.

Oakworth Station (below)
Seen throughout the film for a variety of events. Work place of 'Perks' the station porter, Peter's coal mine, the presentation ceremony, the 'shabby Russian' and the homecoming of the railway children's father.

Railway Children Engine (below) Pannier Tank Engine, former 0.6.0 Great Western, painted in the ficticious livery and logo of the Great Northern & Southern Railway, specially created for the film. The engine is still in use on the Keighley and Worth Valley Railway.

Old Gentlemen Coach (below)
Often used for special occasions and filming on the Worth Valley Line.

Brontë Parsonage Museum (The Doctors house)
Already well known throughout the literary world being the home of the Brontë family. In the film, this house became the home of Doctor Forrest.

Mytholmes Tunnel
Being only 82 metres (89 yards) long, the film makers had to build a scaffold over this end of the tunnel and cover it with a tarpaulin to make the tunnel appear longer and much darker.

Vale Fold Cottages
Row of cottages seen during the paper chase. The mill dam seen in front of these cottages has been drained and planted with trees.

Vale Fold Cottages
Used by the film production company as their base and offices. Photographs of the filming can be seen in the pubs dining room.

Oakworth Station (below)
Seen throughout the film for a variety of events. Work place of 'Perks' the station porter, Peter's coal mine, the presentation ceremony, the 'shabby Russian' and the homecoming of the railway children's father.

Railway Children Engine (below) Pannier Tank Engine, former 0.6.0 Great Western, painted in the ficticious livery and logo of the Great Northern & Southern Railway, specially created for the film. The engine is still in use on the Keighley and Worth Valley Railway.

Old Gentlemen Coach (below)
Often used for special occasions and filming on the Worth Valley Line.

Brontë Parsonage Museum (The Doctors house)
Already well known throughout the literary world being the home of the Brontë family. In the film, this house became the home of Doctor Forrest.

Mytholmes Tunnel
Being only 82 metres (89 yards) long, the film makers had to build a scaffold over this end of the tunnel and cover it with a tarpaulin to make the tunnel appear longer and much darker.

Vale Fold Cottages
Row of cottages seen during the paper chase. The mill dam seen in front of these cottages has been drained and planted with trees.

Vale Fold Cottages
Used by the film production company as their base and offices. Photographs of the filming can be seen in the pubs dining room.

Oakworth Station (below)
Seen throughout the film for a variety of events. Work place of 'Perks' the station porter, Peter's coal mine, the presentation ceremony, the 'shabby Russian' and the homecoming of the railway children's father.

Railway Children Engine (below) Pannier Tank Engine, former 0.6.0 Great Western, painted in the ficticious livery and logo of the Great Northern & Southern Railway, specially created for the film. The engine is still in use on the Keighley and Worth Valley Railway.

Old Gentlemen Coach (below)
Often used for special occasions and filming on the Worth Valley Line.

Brontë Parsonage Museum (The Doctors house)
Already well known throughout the literary world being the home of the Brontë family. In the film, this house became the home of Doctor Forrest.

Mytholmes Tunnel
Being only 82 metres (89 yards) long, the film makers had to build a scaffold over this end of the tunnel and cover it with a tarpaulin to make the tunnel appear longer and much darker.

Vale Fold Cottages
Row of cottages seen during the paper chase. The mill dam seen in front of these cottages has been drained and planted with trees.

Vale Fold Cottages
Used by the film production company as their base and offices. Photographs of the filming can be seen in the pubs dining room.

Oakworth Station (below)
Seen throughout the film for a variety of events. Work place of 'Perks' the station porter, Peter's coal mine, the presentation ceremony, the 'shabby Russian' and the homecoming of the railway children's father.

Railway Children Engine (below) Pannier Tank Engine, former 0.6.0 Great Western, painted in the ficticious livery and logo of the Great Northern & Southern Railway, specially created for the film. The engine is still in use on the Keighley and Worth Valley Railway.

Old Gentlemen Coach (below)
Often used for special occasions and filming on the Worth Valley Line.

Brontë Parsonage Museum (The Doctors house)
Already well known throughout the literary world being the home of the Brontë family. In the film, this house became the home of Doctor Forrest.

Mytholmes Tunnel
Being only 82 metres (89 yards) long, the film makers had to build a scaffold over this end of the tunnel and cover it with a tarpaulin to make the tunnel appear longer and much darker.

Vale Fold Cottages
Row of cottages seen during the paper chase. The mill dam seen in front of these cottages has been drained and planted with trees.

Vale Fold Cottages
Used by the film production company as their base and offices. Photographs of the filming can be seen in the pubs dining room.

Oakworth Station (below)
Seen throughout the film for a variety of events. Work place of 'Perks' the station porter, Peter's coal mine, the presentation ceremony, the 'shabby Russian' and the homecoming of the railway children's father.

Railway Children Engine (below) Pannier Tank Engine, former 0.6.0 Great Western, painted in the ficticious livery and logo of the Great Northern & Southern Railway, specially created for the film. The engine is still in use on the Keighley and Worth Valley Railway.

Old Gentlemen Coach (below)
Often used for special occasions and filming on the Worth Valley Line.

Brontë Parsonage Museum (The Doctors house)
Already well known throughout the literary world being the home of the Brontë family. In the film, this house became the home of Doctor Forrest.

Mytholmes Tunnel
Being only 82 metres (89 yards) long, the film makers had to build a scaffold over this end of the tunnel and cover it with a tarpaulin to make the tunnel appear longer and much darker.

Vale Fold Cottages
Row of cottages seen during the paper chase. The mill dam seen in front of these cottages has been drained and planted with trees.

Vale Fold Cottages
Used by the film production company as their base and offices. Photographs of the filming can be seen in the pubs dining room.

Oakworth Station (below)
Seen throughout the film for a variety of events. Work place of 'Perks' the station porter, Peter's coal mine, the presentation ceremony, the 'shabby Russian' and the homecoming of the railway children's father.

Railway Children Engine (below) Pannier Tank Engine, former 0.6.0 Great Western, painted in the ficticious livery and logo of the Great Northern & Southern Railway, specially created for the film. The engine is still in use on the Keighley and Worth Valley Railway.

Old Gentlemen Coach (below)
Often used for special occasions and filming on the Worth Valley Line.